ABSTRACT

A detailed description about the origin of students in Kentucky state-supported and independent institutions of higher education is features. Information about county and state of origin for all students, first-time freshmen, and professional students is included as well as definitions of terms. Lists of the membership in the Commonwealth of Kentucky Council on Higher Education, senior colleges and universities, junior colleges, and community colleges in Kentucky are provided. All of Kentucky's 120 counties are represented. The regional drawing power of colleges and universities is evidenced by the number of first-time freshmen who enroll at institutions near their home county. Public community colleges are most likely to attract students from home and contiguous counties (93%). Of the senior public institutions, the University of Louisville (77%) and Northern Kentucky University (61%) have the highest home and contiguous county proportions. The University of Kentucky (26%) and Eastern Kentucky University (26%) drew three fourths of their first-time freshmen from other than home or contiguous counties. The average home and contiguous county proportion for the state supported sector was 57%. The 25 reports are on: enrollment by county and state of origin; first-time freshmen enrollment by county and state of origin; first-time professional enrollment by county and state or origin; enrollment by county of origin; total enrollment as a percent of population and first-time freshmen enrollment as a percent of high school graduates by county of origin. All of Kentucky's 120 counties are represented in higher education. Several well-populated counties provide a major proportion of higher education enrollments. In fall 1987, 5 counties (Jefferson, Fayette, Kenton, Daviess, and Hardin) accounted for 35 percent of enrolled first-time freshmen students while accounting for 32 percent of the state's population.

The regional drawing power of colleges and universities is evidenced by the number of first-time freshmen who enroll at institutions near their home county. Public community colleges are most likely to attract students from home and contiguous counties (93 percent). Of the senior public institutions, the University of Louisville (77 percent) and Northern Kentucky University (61 percent) have the highest home and contiguous county proportions. The University of Kentucky (26 percent), and Eastern Kentucky University (26 percent) drew three fourths of their first-time freshmen from other than home or contiguous counties. The average home and contiguous county proportion for the state-supported sector was 57 percent.

DEFINITIONS

The following definitions are those officially established for the reporting of enrollment data to the Council on Higher Education. Data in the report are based on net headcount enrollment as of the last day to add a course for credit. This date is the one established by each institution as the official cut-off date.

County, State, Or Territory Of Origin
County, state, or territory of student's legal residence at time of first admission

First-Professional Student
Student enrolled in dentistry, law, medicine, or "Pharm-D" programs

First-Time Freshman
Student who has not previously attended any college or university, or a student who was enrolled as a high school student with early college admission

Kentucky High School Graduate
Student graduating from a Kentucky high school

In-State Enrollment (Resident Student)
Student who is a legal resident of Kentucky as established by the Kentucky Council on Higher Education policy on classification of students for fee assessment purposes

Out-Of-State Enrollment (Nonresident Student)
Student who is not a legal resident of Kentucky as established by the Kentucky Council on Higher Education policy on classification of students for fee assessment purposes (foreign students are out-of-state)
